NYM AIMS

The aim of NYM is to bring together creative people, who are currently researching membrane technology at university or in industry. The network is meant to create a communication platform on which membrane researchers can exchange ideas. This will serve to enhance knowledge and abilities as well as to build useful contacts in the field of membrane technology.

Through the NYM Database and NYM Meetings an overview will be given of scientific activities and main research focuses of University institutes, research centres and industrial development departments. All participants will have the opportunity to present their own field of research and to get informed about different projects based on similar or different membrane processes.

Young Membrains who join this community will benefit from its advantages and support its synergistic effects.
